Cops: Body found; death not suspicious

May 6, 2014 \mid Bucks County Courier Times (Levittown, PA) Author: Matt Coughlin \mid Page: B2 \mid Section: 00redesign 102 Words

PERKASIE - The decomposed body of a 57-year-old Perkasie man was found Sunday night in the man's apartment, police said.

Police Chief Stephen Hillias said Charles Bartholomew Jr.'s death is not believed to be suspicious.

About 9 p.m. Sunday night, neighbors reported a foul odor coming from an apartment in the Southgate Commons on Fairview Avenue. Bartholomew's body was discovered inside.

Hillias said authorities believe Bartholomew died several days ago. Bartholomew moved into the apartment recently and lived alone, according to Hillias.

Bartholomew had previous medical issues. He had no visitors to his apartment and his family lives on the West Coast, Hillias said.

VENTS FOR 0619 C

Intelligencer, The (Doylestown, PA) - June 19, 2003

Edition: DAILY CSection: LOCALPage: 1B

In response to Tuesday's vent: Obviously that person missed entirely what I said (about homeowners associations). I have no problem with the rules and regulations of our community whatsoever. We elected a board but didn't really know its agenda. Some of the board members became so tyrannical, fanatical and overzealous in enforcing the rules that they are breaking their own rules. When I purchased my home, I agreed to all the rules and regulations. My complaint is that some of the board members are targeting some infractions while obviously and blatantly ignoring other rules. I do not understand this inconsistency. We are all adults who are supposed to know how to live in a community harmoniously without contention.

Sandra Gelfin, Ivyland

After a cold, snowy winter followed by a soaking spring, Saturday turned out to be a glorious day to enjoy a horseback ride at Green Lane Park. As my friend and I rode along the Orange Trail off Hill Road, I noticed tracks. I didn't think any more about it until I heard the familiar whine of a four-wheeler. I just couldn't believe that after all the publicity about the father and son who disturbed the bald eagle's nest that someone would dare to bring a four-wheeler into Green Lane Park. The Orange Trail was torn up and this four-wheeler purposely destroyed the field along Green Lane Road. I encourage all horseback riders, walkers, joggers and bicyclists to carry cell phones and contact the park rangers and/or the police when they see their park being destroyed by the illegal activities of these four-wheelers. If you can afford the four-wheeler, you can afford the trailer and gas to travel to an area where four-wheeling is legal.

Maria A. Wagner, Quakertown

I do the shopping for my family and go to the store about three times a week. While I shop, I like to have a soda or juice from the cold storage in the store. At the end of my trip, I pay for the drink and discard the empty container. Now, according to some of you, should I be taking this soda up to a register and paying for it before I open it so it is rightfully mine before I consume it? I think the store can trust me for 20 minutes until my shopping is done. I would much rather see kids get a cookie to calm them down than see them slapped and yelled at.

Dan Kalfas, Hatboro

Anyone who witnessed an accident at approximately 10 p.m. Saturday, May 24, between a red sports car and a white Ford at the Wawa at the intersection of Davisville and County Line roads, please call me at (215) 674-6236.

Murray Bressler

It still amazes me what parents of our community teach our children today. On Saturday, my 4-year-old daughter had her dance recital at CB Gymnastics, which was probably one of the cutest things I have seen. The teacher, Miss Crystal, did an excellent job orchestrating such an organized recital with such a young ensemble of children. When the recital ended, my sister-in-law wanted to give my daughter some flowers she had bought for her, only to find that the flowers that had sat beside her the entire time were gone. She looked around until the gym practically cleared out, and no flowers. I really would like to think that a child picked them up and thought they were for her. What are we instilling in our young? That it is OK for us to take things that do not belong to us as long as no one is watching? Or, a worst-case scenario: If a parent took them, then shame on you.

Claire Froman, Plumsteadville

I was amazed at the mother who gave a "thumbs down" to the Pennridge School District for not allowing her daughter to participate in the graduation ceremony because she failed to turn in her graduation project on time. What the writer didn't mention is that her daughter had four years to complete the project. What about the rest of the seniors who did complete their responsibilities? Should their efforts be diminished by including those who did not? Your daughter could have proudly walked with her classmates had she fulfilled her obligations. Instead of putting the blame on the school administration, make your daughter accountable for her actions. The requirements were the same for all the students. Why should your daughter and a few others be the exception? Did they really think they would be "excused" and allowed to participate? Well, they just learned life lesson number one. No more excuses, no more late passes, no more notes from Mom and Dad. Welcome to the real world.

TWO ALLENTOWN MEN GUILTY OF RAPING 29-YEAR-OLD - Morning Call, The (Allentown, PA) - February 23, 1985 - page W24

February 23, 1985 | Morning Call, The (Allentown, PA) | DEBBIE GARLICKI, The Morning Call | LOCAL | Page W24

Two Allentown men were found guilty yesterday of raping a 29-year-old woman who said the men drove to a deserted area and told her they wanted her to "have fun their way."

The Lehigh County jury reached the verdict after 1 1/2 days of testimony in the trial of Eduardo Brinquez, 30, of Silk Street and Ruben Lam, 30, of Chew Street.

The two men could be sentenced to 10-20 years in prison.

The woman testified Thursday that she met the two men on Aug. 11, 1984, at about 2 a.m. at an Allentown bar. She said Lam, who was referred to throughout the trial as "Chino," pushed her into a car driven by Brinquez.

She said she tried to get out of the car before the assault occurred and resisted their advances. The woman could not give the exact location where they stopped before returning to Allentown and then going to Easton, where she asked them to drop her off.

Dr. Antonio Martinez testified yesterday that he examined the woman on Aug. 14 and did not find evidence of physical trauma but added that the lack of cuts and bruises in the vaginal area did not mean she was or wasn't raped.

Martinez said the majority of women come to a hospital the same day of the alleged assault or the day after but a small number of women are examined up to three weeks after the incidents.

Saying victims react differently, he said it did not strike him as unusual that the woman claimed she had sex with her boyfriend the night before the examination.

The woman's boyfriend, Pedro Mendoza, testified that he sought out Brinquez and Lam after the woman told him she had been raped. He said Brinquez, when confronted, admitted raping her.

Aaron Matte, the attorney for Lam, and Lee Rothman, counsel for Brinquez, asked that the case be dismissed, citing inconsistencies in testimony, after the commonwealth rested its case.

Judge David E. Mellenberg denied the motion and said the question of whether a rape occurred was for the jury to decide.

Carlos Flores and Carlos Ramon Quiles, who said they worked with the defendants at a mushroom farm, testified that they saw the two men and the woman in a car shortly before 5 a.m. the morning of the alleged rape.

Both said the car Brinquez was driving stopped in front of Flores' home on N. 7th Street in Allentown.

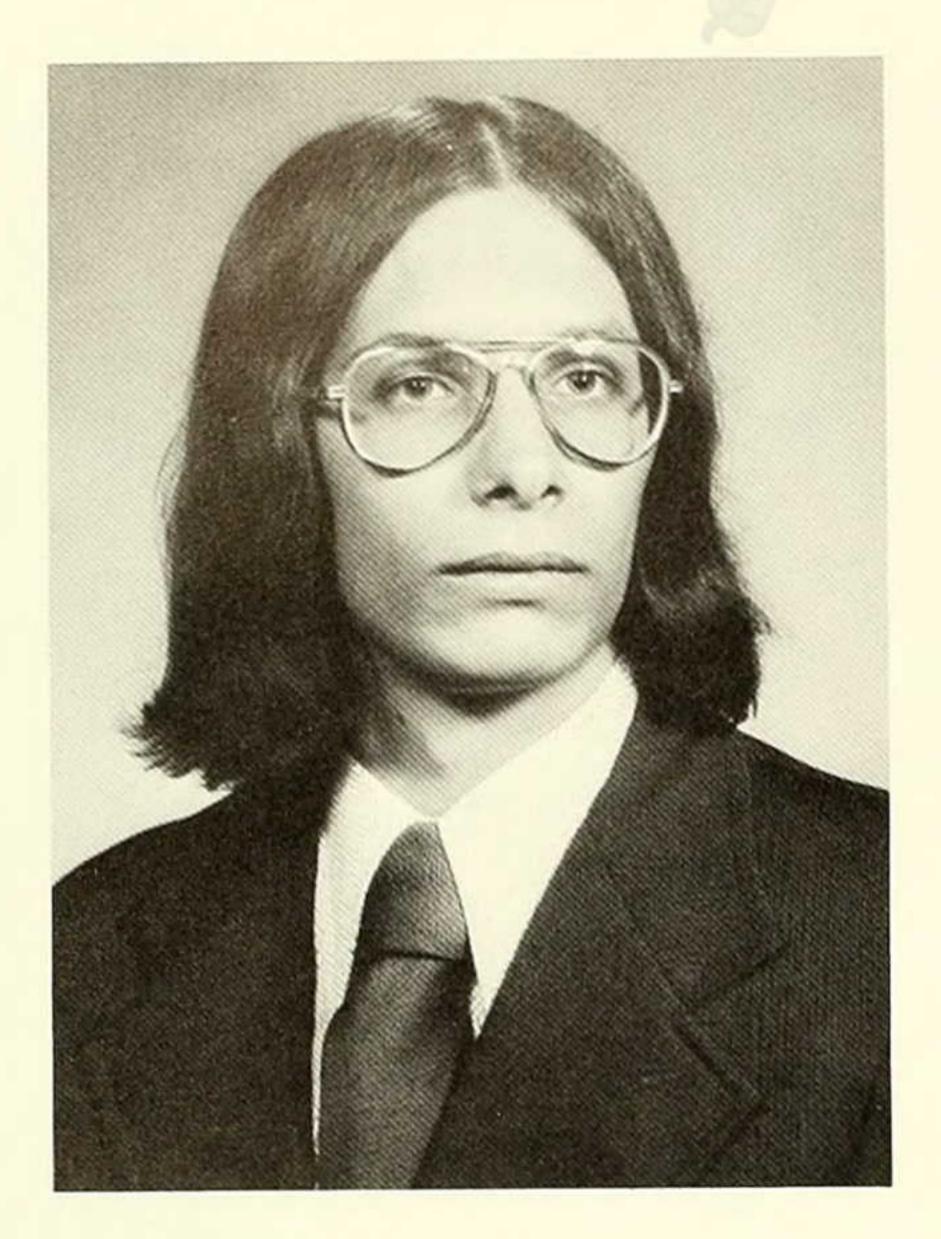

They said they recalled seeing a police car drive past while the woman was getting in the car. The woman did not make any effort to get the attention of the police, they said.

The woman testified earlier that the men stopped at a home that she said was on N. 8th Street and she asked Flores if she could use the bathroom and told him they raped her.

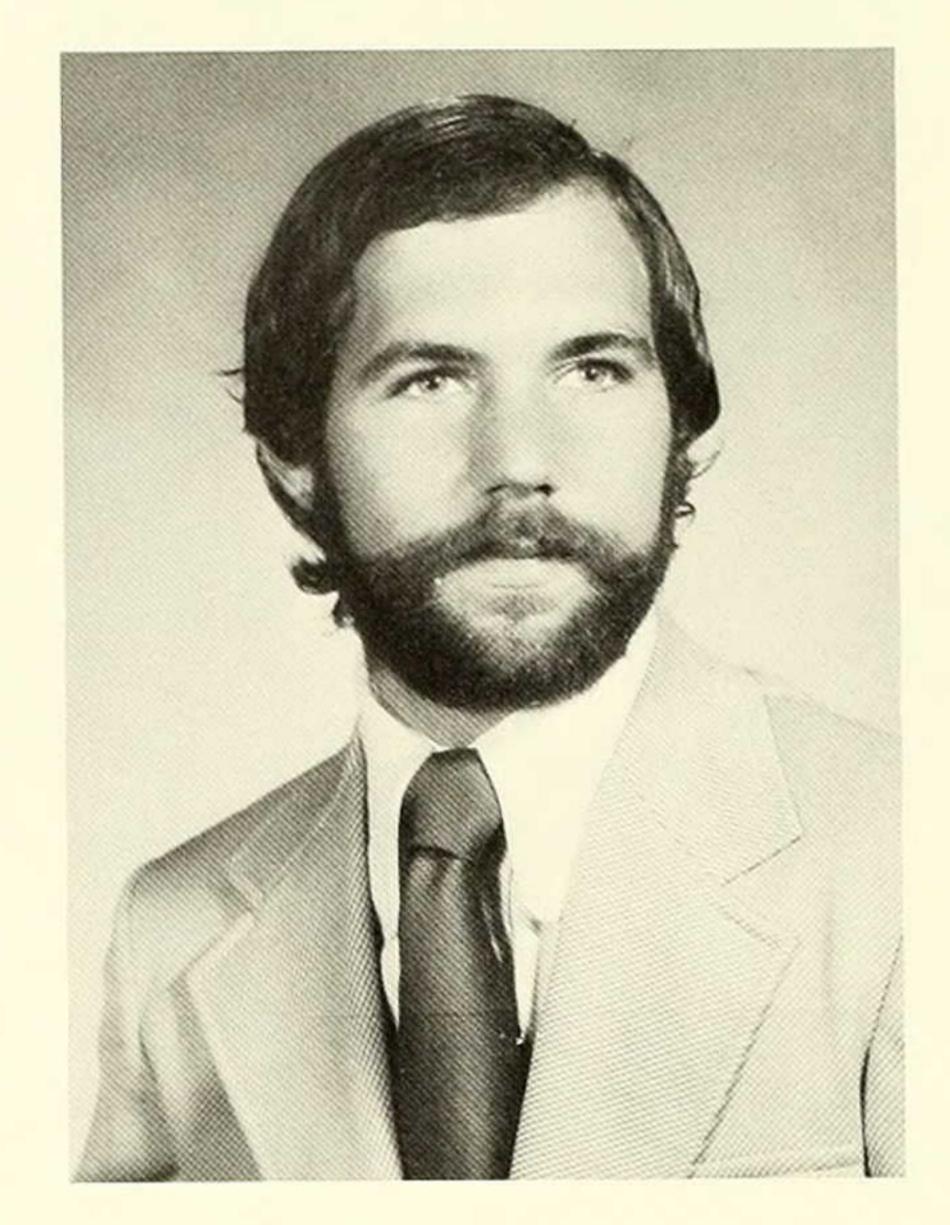

Flores, who does not speak English and testified with the help of an interpreter, said she never mentioned anything to him about a rape.

"What I tell is the truth. I don't know if it helps him (Brinquez) or her," he said when questioned by Asst. Dist. Atty. Michael McIntyre."

Two victories highlighted the 1975 Aggie tennis season. The first victory occurred on a cold and windy April day when visiting Widener College fell to the Aggie netmen by a 5-4 score. The second win came on the road when Philadelphia Textile did not prove strong enough to overcome the Aggie power. The score was 5-4 again.

Outstanding performances by underclassmen Fran Crisafi and Paul Bernett proved to be inspiring for the entire team, and with their leadership, the Aggies should be more than ready for 1976.

Seniors J.C. Bailey, Richard Brooks, Rusty Suher and Walt Hopkins were also very important in the team's success.

Rumor haunts Pat Haden

NEW YORK (UPI) Life can be difficult, even sticky at times, which brings up the case of Pat Haden, a young man who ran up against a tough decision, unquestionably made the right one and now finds he's still got a big problem.

His problem is trying to catch up with a rumor, straighten out the facts. He has, but others haven't, and that's where all the trouble comes in.

Pat Haden overcame a bad start and finished looking better than a million bucks in quarterbacking Southern California's Trojans to their second National Championship in three years this past season. He isn't the biggest quarterback in the world at 5-11 and 180 but he grows on you in a hurry when you watch him fling that football.

He's good, very good. John McKay, his college coach, says he's the greatest passer he has ever seen.

THE PROS are interested in Pat Haden Only up to a point, though, because they think he isn't interested in them.

What happened is that the 22-year-old Haden, an outstanding student, was offered a Rhodes Scholarship, and after considerable soul-searching, he accepted it. He did a great deal of deliberating before reaching his decision because originally he had made up his mind to play pro ball if he could.

Now here's the problem: Pat Haden will be gone two years, starting this coming September, two long, hard years, studying politics, philosophy and economics at Oxford, and word has gotten out among some of the professional scouts that when he's finished with those two years, he's going to pass up football to go into some law office.

WITH THE draft coming up next Tuesday and the word going around Haden doesn't want to play pro football, he figures to be by-passed pretty much and that's what's so upsetting him.

"The thing that bother me is it isn't true at all." Pat Haden says, his voice reflecting the way he feels. "I want to play proball after I finish my two years at Oxford. I want to very much I think I can play in the pros. I've watched them on TV and I think I'm as good as some of them playing now. There have been cases where others have done well in the proseven though they didn't go right in and play with them after they graduated, haven't Certainly. Roger Staubach is the classic case. He was an officer in the Navy four years after graduation from Annapolis and was 27 when he first reported to the Dallas Cowboys as a rookie in 1969. Staubach made it, and Haden feels he can.

He disagrees with those who say his size will hold him back. "MY SIZE MAY not be all in my favor." he says, "but I can name at least three quarterbacks in the pros right now who aren't any bigger. (Fran) Tarkenton, (Bob) Gricse and (Bob). Berry. All of them are about my size."

Joe Namath is listed as 6-2. When he slouches, which is more often than not, he's only about six feet even. He doesn't have too much trouble.

Haden and split end J. K. McKay, the coach's son, formed a nifty passing comination for the Trojans. They have been buddies ever since attending high school together and had hoped to play in the pros together, but when the scholarship offer came along. J.K. advised Haden the same thing his mother and father did — "take the Rhodes." Pat Haden isn't sorry he did, but he wants it known he still intends playing pro football, at least he wants to try, anyway.

There's something about Southern California football players, something special it seems, which prompts them always to remember their background and come back for one more try when you might not ordinarily think they will.

During the last Southern Cal-Notre Dame contest, for example, with the Irish leading, 24-6. Walt Patulski, the Buffalo Bills' guard who starred at Notre Dame, picked up the phone and really rubbed it in to O.J. Simpson, his teammate from USC.

SIMPSON TOOK IT. What else could be do? When the game ended with Southern Cal annihilating Notre Dame, 55-24, Simpson purposely waited two hours before calling Patulski back. "Walt! This is O.J.," he crooned into the mouthpiece "After I talked to you, I took a nap . . . what was the final score?"

Bobby Bonds, the hard-hitting outfielder acquired in an offseason deal for Bobby Murcer in the first swap ever of $100,000 superstars, signed a 1975 contract with the New York Yankees for a sum estimated in excess of $100,000. First baseman Carl Yastrzemski heads a list of 17 Boston Red Sox players to sign 1975 contracts, the club has announced. Yastrzemski, whose last contract called for an estimated $165,000, reportedly received a small raise. The 35-year-old veteran is entering his 15th season with Boston. . . Bristol Township is looking to rid itself of blighted properties.

Every time Bart Kaufman looks out the window of his Prospect Avenue home, he sees a rundown house next door full of junk, overgrown trees and wild animals.

Lately, he said, the house has attracted teenagers looking for a place to party and homeless people searching for a temporary home.

"My neighbor comes home from work late and she's scared to get out of her car because she doesn't know who might be there," he said.

Kaufman is one of many Bristol Township residents who have watched helplessly as neighboring homes have been left to rot by absentee property owners.

With more than two dozen blighted properties and 200 empty houses scattered throughout the municipality, Bristol Township officials are stepping up with a new program that they hope will fix the problem. They'll start by investing $1 million in hopes of selling some of the eyesore properties.

The township will send the money to the Bucks County Redevelopment Authority so that agency can purchase the properties at fair market value before flipping them to a contractor for refurbishing, said Randee Elton, who the township hired specifically to manage this project. Once the rebuilt houses are sold, the township will receive a majority of proceeds with the remainder going to the authority, Elton said.

"This is a pilot program and the $1 million is like seed money because it's supposed to be a self-funding type of program," she said.

Something different needs to be done, officials said. The property owners have been cited for zoning violations, but that goes nowhere, Elton said.

Officials hope that the threat of the township and authority buying the blighted properties will make the owners fix the buildings themselves, so government doesn't have to "get into the real estate business," said Bob White, the authority's executive director.

"This is about homes that are taking down values of other homes," he said.

Elton said 28 of the 200 vacant properties need to be demolished or "taken down to the studs and completely rehabbed."

The township's vacant property review committee and planning commission trimmed down the list to the 10 worst properties to get started on this year, and the township council approved them for the program. Owners of these properties have until March 10 to set up agreements with the township before the redevelopment authority moves forward with purchasing the land.

So far the only property owner to contact the township is a bank that owns a blighted home on Maple Avenue in Croydon, Elton said.

The township and the newspaper both were unsuccessful in contacting the other owners; three are deceased and have no next of kin.

Kaufman said he was "thrilled" to hear of the township's plan.

"At this point something has to be done," he said.

Phila. woman, 51, killed crossing Route 1 in Bensalem

November 13, 2014 | Bucks County Courier Times (Levittown, PA) Author: Jo Ciavaglia | Page: A | Section: 00redesign 240 Words

A 51-year-old Philadelphia woman was struck and killed early Wednesday morning while crossing Route 1 in Bensalem, just south of Old Lincoln Highway, police said.

Maria Feher was crossing the busy multi-lane highway from the Wawa to the Lincoln Motel when she was struck by a 2003 Chevy pickup traveling southbound after 5 a.m., Lt. William McVey said. She was reportedly killed on impact.

Feher was not using the designated crosswalk and may have been using a cellphone according to unconfirmed reports, McVey said.

The unidentified driver who struck her stopped and is cooperating with police. The motorist did not appear to have been under the influence of drugs or alcohol at this point, but the investigation is ongoing, McVey said. Investigators are asking anyone who may have witnessed the accident or the pedestrian walking prior to the accident to contact them at 215-633-3719.

Both northbound and southbound lanes were reopened about 10:30 a.m., according to PennDOT.

Both northbound and southbound Route 1 had been shut down for about an hour after the accident, and by about 8:30 a.m. the northbound lanes and only one southbound lane had reopened to traffic, McVey said.

The accident is the second pedestrian death in the community in the last week.

A 57-year-old Bensalem woman died Saturday night after police say she was struck by a van while crossing Street Road at Brookwood Drive. The driver in that accident has not been identified and the investigation is continuing, police said.

Charges dismissed against 3 jail officers

April 16, 1999 | Star-Ledger, The (Newark, NJ) Author: MaryAnn Spoto | Page: 33 | Section: UNION 377 Words

A municipal court judge in Elizabeth yesterday dismissed all complaints against three Union County corrections officers who either were involved in or witnessed an altercation at the jail during a high-profile trial last year.

Judge Daniel Russell said it was clear that the Feb. 22, 1998, incident arose from racial tensions as well as the usual stresses of working at a jail and not from any intentional criminal wrongdoing.

The incident occurred during the trial of three corrections officers who were convicted of abusing a group of illegal immigrants brought to the jail or of trying to cover up the mistreatment that occurred nearly four years ago. During the trial, divisions among officers in the jail along racial lines had formed, prompting the union to issue a plea for harmony.

Officer Frank Hornung filed charges of harassment and assault against Officer Augustus Lowther, alleging that Lowther nearly incited a riot on a fourth-floor pod and then threatened Hornung when he tried to bring matters under control. Hornung, who is white, alleged Lowther, who is black, incited inmates to yell threatening racial slurs.

Lowther, who was represented by Passaic attorney Peter Polidoro, filed counter charges, saying Hornung became confrontational when Lowther tried to quell inmates who had been demanding that officers respond to their requests. He said inmates were yelling racial slurs directed at whites and blacks.

Lowther also filed similar charges against Officer Joseph Kearney, who he claimed acted in a threatening manner toward him when Lowther and Hornung were arguing.

Saying the witnesses gave no evidence of wrongdoing on Kearney's part, Russell dismissed the charges against him immediately after all the testimony was in.

After yesterday's proceeding, Lowther said racial tensions because of the trial are what contributed to the escalation of the incident.

"I never intended for it to escalate that far. I have no malice toward any officer that I work with. I got my wrist broke defending one of (Hornung's) friends," he said.

Hornung, who was represented by Newark attorney Anthony Pope Jr., said he was surprised at the outcome and felt the judge was afraid to find criminal liability because he knew a convicted officer would automatically lose his job.

"I think it was a pretty cut and clear case," he said.

November 1, 2001 | Trentonian, The (Trenton, NJ)

Police said suspect Christopher Van Jewell, 45, with no known address, was not hurt in the chase, but one Pennsylvania State Trooper officer had to be treated for minor injuries at a local hospital.

According to the arrest warrant, police spotted Van Jewell driving extremely slowly as he headed south on Interstate-95 about 12:15 a.m. yesterday and attempted to make a vehicle stop.

But Van Jewell, who said he was scared due to having a stolen license plate, stomped on the gas and tried to elude police along southbound I-95, the warrant said.

Several times, Van Jewell jumped into oncoming traffic and eventually tried to ram two state police vehicles as the chase wound through Bucks and into northeast Philadelphia, the warrant said.

He also tried to run over several state troopers before one officer fired two shots in an attempt to flatten his tires, officers said.

Van Jewell eventually crashed on Roosevelt Boulevard near Devereaux Street where he was placed under arrest, police said.

Police later found him to be a fugitive from Burlington County for failing to appear on a theft charge, officers said.

Van Jewell was charged with aggravated assault, reckless endangerment, fleeing and eluding police, and unauthorized use of a vehicle.

He was arraigned before District Justice Leonard Brown in Bensalem and sent to Bucks County Prison on $750,000 bail.

Remembering a man who lived outside society - Saying goodbye to the go-to guy

Bucks County Courier Times (Levittown, PA) - December 8, 2010

Author/Byline: JO CIAVAGLIA

"Sometimes you'd get sick of his stories, but he was great," said Butch Huffman, speaking Tuesday at a memorial service for Leo Murphy, a homeless man who died in September.

Leo Murphy was a good man who lived a bad life.

He made mistakes, plenty, but his heart was in the right place, his daughters say. They blame addiction, a troubled childhood, and suspected mental illness as much as they do their father's lifestyle choices.

Some might say Leo Murphy died the way he lived. In recent years he stayed on and off in a local homeless camp, where, at age 52, he suffered a fatal heart attack on Sept. 8.

His life was hard, but happy, say friends in the camp and advocates for the homeless. He shared it with his girlfriend, Kathie Enyedy, who he married earlier this year.

Murphy was the go-to guy at the camp. He was the person who calmed flaring tensions between camp residents. He wrote poems and built an outhouse with a chemical toilet.

He never met a stranger he didn't like. Visitors never left empty handed when Murphy was around. He'd push into your hand a small American flag, worry stone or other trinket he picked up somewhere.

"If you come to this table, you come as a friend," he told visitors.

On Tuesday, his family of outsiders gathered again in the Bristol Township woods to remember Murphy, a man whose children say he taught them how not to live and how not to make bad decisions.

"Leo is kickin' it with God in the heavenly campground," said Pastor Gary Alloway of the Redemption Church of Bristol.

More than 20 people attended the brief outdoor service in the biting cold. They were other homeless and formerly homeless friends along with volunteers such as Alloway who work and minister to the homeless.

Friends recalled Leo as a friendly, funny, brilliant and hospitable man and proud military veteran. He told people he wasn't a churchgoer, but he attended two services every Sunday. He liked the music.

"Sometimes you'd get sick of his stories," his friend Butch Huffman said, "but he was great."

Shaina Spector, a volunteer who drove Murphy and Enyedy to church remembers a Valentine's Day breakfast with them that she described as one of the best days of her life.

"You guys have changed my life," Spector said. "You helped me find my purpose in life."

Enyedy, who moved in with family after Leo's death, recalled how when everyone in the camp went to sleep, she and Leo would sit at the main table in the camp looking at the stars.

"I still do it when I go to have my last cigarette of the day," she said, dabbing at tears. "I look at the stars."

FAR TOO LONG

Don Richards, a retired pastor who works with the homeless, presented Enyedy with a large handmade wooden cross that everyone at the memorial service signed. He also presented her with two American flags.

Murphy's remains, though, are still at the Bucks County Morgue in Warminster.

Richards and others arranged a funeral service and military burial at the Washington Crossing National Cemetery. But Murphy's marriage to Enyedy, while recognized in the eyes of God, is not legal in the eyes of the court.

His four children, whom he had not seen in more than 20 years, have yet to claim the remains or release them to Enyedy.

Erin Murphy, 29, of Arkansas, says her brother, Sean, 34, plans to bring their father back to Florida where he lives and where Leo has other family. But Sean and the coroner's office have been unable to connect, she said.

The family has also been focused on caring for their mom, who suffered a near fatal heart attack the day before their dad died.

"It's taking far too long, which is a shame because no one should have to go through that just to be taken care of properly," Erin said, adding, "I know that the people in his camp are suffering with grief from his loss just as much as we are."

Erin doesn't really remember her dad. She last saw him when she was 5.

"I have one vivid memory of hearing "We Built this City' while he played on a foosball table with one of his friends," she said. "I think I had to have been maybe 4."

Erin and her siblings last saw their dad Christmas Eve 1986, the day their mother threw him out of the house for his drug addiction, she and another sister said. (The coroner's report showed her father did not have drugs in his system when he died, family said.)

"We had presents for him that he never got. After a few years, I guess my mom gave up and ironically, I suppose donated them to a homeless shelter," said Katie Murphy, 31, of Colorado. She was 7 when her dad left.

FINALLY AT REST

Katie says her dad was not a bad man, but a weak one.

At 18, Leo joined the U.S. Army and was sent to Germany where he disarmed Pershing missiles. He married his high school sweetheart, who dropped out of school at 17 to be with him. By age 25, they had four kids.

Murphy had a troubled childhood that he never shook, his daughters said.

"Before drugs took over his life, and took our place in his consciousness, he was a brilliant man," she said. "He took a lot of pain and found his own way to deal with it."

Before he developed his drug addiction, his children were the center of his universe, Katie Murphy said.

"He always stopped what he was doing to help us or play with us," she said.

He taught them important lessons like how to not write past the margins, roller skate without falling and make extra-cheesy macaroni and cheese, Katie said.

He never spanked them, always finding a better way than violence for dealing with conflict. He'd never intentionally harm anyone, she said.

Leo sent her an apologetic birthday card on her 16th birthday. She last heard from him nine years earlier.

The next, and last, time she spoke to her father was eight years ago. She wanted to tell him he was going to be a grandfather. But when Leo didn't remember his two youngest kids during the conversation, she decided it was better they led separate lives.

"The sad truth is, if I had seen him on the street, I would not have recognized him," she said. "(I remember) he had a full head of hair, a soft smile, and vibrant green eyes. The only thing unchanged in the (recent) pictures I saw were his eyes. Well, that and he was always that skinny."

Katie Murphy wants to forgive her father, but she can't shake off her anger — at the circumstances her father found himself in and the choices he made. Every one of his children has comfortable homes with spare seats at the dining room table and spare beds to share.

"But I think I can understand some things, and I have a lot of peace and forgiveness for the things I don't understand. He was human like the rest of us, after all, and we've all made our share of mistakes, right?" Katie Murphy said. "Every person that knew him in our family has shared the same sentiment: "Thank God little Leo finally has rest.' "

LEVITTOWN WOMAN DIES

AFTER BEING STRUCK BY CAR

BRISTOL TOWNSHIP - A Levittown woman was struck by a car and killed early yesterday while crossing New Falls Road at Lower Orchard Turn in Levittown, police said.

Investigators said that Brenna Schmidt, 48, was crossing the road just after 1 a.m. yesterday when she was hit by a 1985 Ford Thunderbird driven by Michelle Levy, 26, of Croydon. Schmidt died at the scene, police said.

Anyone with information is asked to call Bristol Township police at 215-785-6107.

WHITEMARSH WILL DEVOTE

MEETING TO RETIREMENT CENTER

WHITEMARSH - Discussion of a proposed 96-acre retirement community - and a zoning change needed to create the continuing-care district in which it would be built - will once again be the sole agenda item at a township Planning Commission meeting.

The commission's Feb. 18 session, scheduled for 8 p.m. in the Colonial Elementary School auditorium, follows one this week that featured presentations by several neighborhood groups, a traffic consultant, and others who filled the 900-seat Plymouth-Whitemarsh High School auditorium.

Township officials said the Planning Commission's February meeting most likely would feature an updated report from the traffic consultant. But no vote on the issue is expected then, "so there's at least two more meetings," said Rob Ford, assistant township manager. "We'll just continue the discussion and the dialogue."

NEW YORK (UPI) - The rank and file members of New York City's Taxi Drivers Union voted today to walk off their jobs at midnight tonight.

The drivers control thousand strong, gathered at Manhattan Center and ratified a strike motion proposed by the union leader-

"Everybody wants to go out," said one veteran cabbie. Raphael Zapata. "I think this has dragged on too long." The Metropolitan Taxi Board of Trade which represents the owners said the fleets already were operating at a $7 million annual loss. The board declined to improve its "final" offer of 10 days ago which calls for a 40 per cent fare hike as proposed by Mayor John V. Lindsay.

Taxi drivers earn an average $150 a week and reportedly are demanding an increase to about

The city council, which has the sole authority to raise fares, has refused to revise the rates without knowing the cost of the contract settlement. Consequently, the union has been extending previously set strike deadlines since the expiration of the contract two weeks ago.

3 relieved of CG duties

WASHINGTON (UPI) Three Coast Guard officers have been relieved of their duties pending an investigation of their roles in the unsuccessful attempt of a crewman of a Soviet fishing vessel to gain asylum aboard a Coast Guard cutter, it was announced today.

The Coast Guard said the action was taken against rear Adm. William B. Ellis, commanding officer of the 1st Coast Guard District, Boston; Ellis's chief of staff, Capt. Fletcher W. Brown, and Cmdr Ralph W. Eustis, captain of the cutter Vigilant.

The Vigilant was the ship involved in the Nov. 23 incident off Martha's Vineyard, Mass. A Lithuanian native who sought asylum aboard the Vigilant was captured by a Russian party which was allowed to come aboard the ship, and was returned to his own vessel.

"In accordance with standard legal practices in sich situations certain Coast Guard officers have been relieved of their regularly assigned duties, pending completion of the investigation." the Coast Guard said in a statement.

It emphasized that the action "was not a punishment nor does it reflect any judgment to the culpability of the persons affected."

Andrea Tonti and Joe Meszaros arrived at The Trentonian in a burgundy-colored Mustang, a back seat packed with all of their earthly possessions, plus a trunk top that held a strapped-down CD player, two speakers, a cooler and tree.

Inside, Tonti's beagle, "Gypsy," yelped and jumped around a passenger seat.

Tonti, Meszaros and Gypsy are homeless, castaways from Hamilton Township, engaged in a daily scrounge for a meal, wash-up or sanctity.

"We sleep straight-up in the car," Meszaros said.

The fact that Meszaros and Tonti are close to 60 years old is a contribution to a story that produces heartache, especially when the estranged father delivers more detail.

"I have 10 children, but none of them want to help me. They don't want anything to do with me or Andrea," he said.

Meszaros admitted that his infidelity - he left his wife for Tonti - caused irreparable damage to his relationship with his children, especially after his wife passed away.

Meszaros and Tonti reminisced about how they met, lost in the past, disconnected from a reality that they are homeless from Hamilton, in Trenton looking for help.

Each night, they park their car in a 24-hour supermarket lot and sleep "straight-up" like NASA astronauts awaiting takeoff.

Remarkably, Trenton, a city short on money, is a cash cow for down-on-their-luck people, whether they come from Lawrence, Ewing or Hamilton.

Meszaros and Tonti on Monday visited Trenton Area Soup Kitchen, where they eat lunch.

A call to TASK Executive Director Dennis Micai preceded their arrival to the Escher Street facility.

Micai, who dreams of a day when TASK is closed because there's a chicken in every pot or when everyone has a place and pot to piss in, delivers an expected invitation.

"Our doors open at 10:30. Just send them over," Micai said.

Meszaros and Tonti agree to come back on Tuesday.

They are 20 minutes late for an 8 a.m. appointment.

Meszaros wears a white T-shirt; Tonti dresses in a frown that starts in the furrows of her brow, depresses her eye lids and pulls down the corners of her mouth.

They were fed at TASK but expressed disappointment that no counselors were available to discuss their situation.

We talk more about their homeless history, including an admission that Mercer County Board of Social Services had hooked them up with an apartment.

When apartment owners discovered that Tonti had a dog they offered her an ultimatum - lose Gypsy or lose the apartment.

"I couldn't part with my dog. I love that dog," Tonti said.

A suggestion is made to contact the Trenton Rescue Mission.

"We don't want to be anywhere where they might split me and Andrea up. We want to stay together. I don't trust places like that," Meszaros said.

Another call is made to Annette Lartigue, a city councilwoman who serves as Chief of Administrative Services at the Mercer County Board of Social Services.

Lartigue supplies two phone numbers and several suggestions, which are passed on to Tonti and Meszaros.

They leave after we make plans for another 8 a.m. meeting on Wednesday.

I call Mary Gay Abbott-Young, executive director of the Trenton Rescue Mission.

She offers her regular response, detailing a list of available support.

Abbott-Young hears about the Meszaros-Tonti homeless story, then instructs me to send them over when they came back on Wednesday.

They did not return.

Andrea Tonti and Joe Meszaros live in their car. They had a chance for housing but turned it down because they refused to part with their dog, Gypsy.
